Sustainability in focus: Bayerische Versorgungskammer joins Net-Zero Asset Owner Alliance

The Bayerische Versorgungskammer (BVK) is the first pension provider in Germany to become part of a network comprising the world's largest asset owners that aim to reduce the CO<sub>2</sub> emissions of their investment portfolios to net zero by 2050. The Net-Zero Asset Owner Alliance was founded at the UN Climate Summit in New York in September 2019, and was established together with the United Nations Environment Programme Finance Initiative (UNEP FI), the Principles for Responsible Investment (PRI) and the WWF, along with twelve other pension funds and insurers from around the world. In total, more than 40 major institutional investors belong to the alliance, which together manage assets of nearly seven trillion US dollars.

"Given the urgency with which climate change is to be tackled, asset owners such as ourselves want to use their investment strategies on a worldwide scale to help limit global warming to a maximum of 1.5 °C in accordance with the Paris Climate Agreement. For us, sustainability has long been a key focus, and we will render our contribution to achieving a climate-neutral economy," explains André Heimrich, Chief Investment Officer at BVK.

The goal for the members of the Net-Zero Asset Owner Alliance is primarily pursued through engagement and active dialogue with (portfolio) companies and political decision-makers, as well as through investments that directly contribute to climate protection. By doing so, a substantial transformation of the global economy and a shift towards its climate-neutral alignment are to be achieved.

"This accession represents an important step for BVK in the continued development of its sustainability strategy in capital investment. This clear positioning helps us to sharpen and implement our goals in the asset classes with the utmost stringency. Essential structures for achieving the goals of the Net-Zero Asset Owner Alliance have already been established via our engagement approach with the exercising of voting rights, as well as our internal and external sustainability analyses. And we will now expand these structures further," explains Nicole Becker, Head of Board Affairs and Sustainability in the Investments Division of BVK.

Subsequently, BVK is consistently pursuing its sustainability path. Key milestones already include joining the Global Real Estate Sustainability Benchmark (GRESB), and signing the United Nations Principles for Responsible Investment (PRI).
